Ian Stacey, SECOS CEO said, "SECOS is pleased to broaden its product portfolio and customer base in what we feel will be a strong growth area both in Australia and around the world. It is pleasing to see the hard work in launching new brands and products come to fruition".

SECOS Group was one of the first companies in Australia to have its compostable biopolymer resin & film products certified as compostable in 2012. SECOS now has a range of certified Industrial Compostable & Home Compostable biopolymer resins. These resins can go into a wide range of film applications which are often in the form of a bag including Items such as Bin Liners, Kitchen Caddy Bags and Dog Waste Bags.

Through its ownership of Cardia, SECOS has been supplying Councils and film converters for years. We are very pleased to now have an opportunity to supply Woolworths Eco stores. This is a significant opportunity for SECOS to expand its retail presence. We are also pleased to be launching under a new MyEcoBag brand. Investments in branding, marketing plus new packaging design initiatives have broadened our household waste product range and will assist the SECOS range of earth friendly, plastic free, certified compostable products to stand out on any retail shelf.

SECOS sees its mission to replace single use plastics with compostable alternatives. Of the 80 million¹ tonnes of plastic produced each year for single use flexible packaging, 20 million tonnes of plastic are used to create between 0.5 to 1 trillion² single-use plastic bags each year. On average each bag is utilized for 12 minutes². Compostable alternatives made with Cardia's patented formulas and annually renewable resources make sense as they reduce the environmental pollution caused by the proliferation of plastic bags which can take decades to break down. And Cardia's bioplastic solutions are much more environmentally friendly than paper. It would take 150 million trees each year to produce paper bag alternatives as well as a 6x higher energy use to manufacture paper bags.
